The risks are real, the targets are urgent, and Europe's sustainability leaders are meeting both head-on.

The sustainability function is facing its greatest pressure in a decade. The Omnibus has destabilised the regulatory roadmap you built your strategy around. Geopolitical fragmentation is reshaping supply chains faster than policy can follow. And the business case assumptions that secured your budget, your team and your Board mandate two years ago are being challenged in every investment review.

The cost of standing still is not theoretical. It is reduced headcount, deferred targets, and a function that loses its seat at the table precisely when it is needed most. This is not a moment for consensus. It is a moment for senior practitioners who are defending sustainability's commercial value, turning compliance into strategic advantage, and making the decisions now that will determine whether 2030 targets are met or quietly abandoned.

At Reuters Events: Sustainability Europe 2026 (20-21 October, London), alongside 300 senior sustainability, procurement and supply chain executives, we will help you manage supply chain volatility, respond to regulatory changes, improve your data accessibility, and build resilience into core operations so your business can perform under stress.

The future of sustainability teams is not guaranteed. It will be secured by those who can make sustainability stand on its own.

“

Excellent event covering a broad range of topics, from draft disclosures out for consultation, to biodiversity considerations for business. Range of technical experts and ample networking opportunities.

Unmatched 2026 experience

The leaders moving so fast aren't doing it along. They're comparing what other companies have already tried, tested and proven, to understand where sustainability delivers real financial impact.

That's what makes Sustainability Europe 2026 so valuable.

You want deeper, meaningful networking, so for this year, we're intentionally leaning into this with more structured, high-value opportunities to connect.

This year we've doubled down on those conversations.

CAFFEINATE AND COLLABORATE

Start your morning with a fresh coffee from our onsite barista and kick off the day in the best possible way. As you collect your drink, pick up your challenge pin, a simple, visual way to show others what you're looking to solve, learn or explore at the event.

STRATEGY SQUADS: CHALLENGE CIRCLES

Kickstart your day with focused connections and shared purpose.

Join a small group of peers for a fast, high-impact morning session designed to help you clarify your priorities and meet others tackling similar challenges.

Connect on your key challenge so you can benchmark goals, exchange early insights, and build relationships you'll return to throughout the event.

NETWORKING DRINKS

Join peers, speakers and industry leaders for a relaxed networking drinks the evening of the first day of Sustainability Europe 2026. This informal meet-up is designed to help you warm up your network and carry on the meaningful conversations had throughout the day.

CURATED 1-TO-1 MEETINGS

Make the most of your time onsite with our curated 1-to-1 meeting programme. Attendees will have the opportunity to connect directly with carefully matched solution providers based on their specific priorities and challenges. These personalised conversations are designed to help you fast-track insights, explore relevant solutions and build meaningful partnerships.
